B. LOWENSTEIN & BROS. REMOVAL.

WE ARE GLAD TO ANNOUNCE THAT

OUR NEW RETAIL STORE

ON MAIN STREET, is now complete, and we will open it on MONDAY MORNING, and be ready to welcome our Friends and Patrons and the public generally.

We take this occasion to say that we have spared no expense in fitting up this store, and that we have taken advantage of every new idea that we considered conducive to the comfort and convenience of our customers. and we do not hesitate to add that in these particulars no superior establishment can be found in the United States. The stock we will exhibit Monday Morning is MORE EXTENSIVE AND VARIED, and better in every way than any we have ever shown, and undoubtedly superior to any outside of New York, Boston or Chicago. We will be glad to see every one, assuring all that it will be a pleasure to us to show them through the establishment and to exhibit the goods.

loss, and no one of them reporting satisfactory would and that unless some more economical plan was adopted the following season would show more disastrous results to the crushing interest of Memphis. To aid us to this end it was deemed proper and advisable to get together the actual owners of these mills and hear from them. Therefore, this resolution was unanimously adopted:

That it is desirable to consolidate all the cotton-seed oil-mills in Memphis into one joint stock company and one management, similar to the plan adopted by the compress companies.

It was then moved and seconded:

Motion carried unanimously.

In pursuance of the above, you, as a stockholder, directly interested in the economical management of your property, and many of you in getting a full and fair price for your seed, are urgently invited to be present at a meeting to be held at Mozart Hall, corner Monroe and Second streets, Monday, April 28th, at 11 o'clock a.m.

S. M. M'CALLUM, Secretary.

The important event of the sale of the first cooking stove ever manufactured in Memphis took place at the Cotton Exchange yesterday forenoon in presence of a large crowd, composed of leading merchants, business men and capitalists. The stove was molded vesterday a week ago, together with about thirty others, being the inauguration of the Bluff City Stove Manufactory, recently erected on Georgia street, in South Memphis. The stove in question was the first one "set up," and by persons present, every one more or less that mountained with a combination of electric lights and gas jets. The first exhibition was a sparring match between McCoy and Donovan, of four rounds, which was hotly contested, the two being pretty fairly matched—one compensating in skill and ability for the excess in size and muscular development of the other. The second match was between Gillespie and Taylor, which went of about as did the first. This was followed by a match between Sullivan and Donovan—the giant proportions of the generosity of the proportion of the brilliantly illuminated with a combination of electric lights and gas jets. It is probably the best troupe on the road, and draws crowded houses wherever it appears. There will be a matinee to-day and a last performance to-night.

The meeting was organized by the selection of Mr. L. Hanauer, of the Hanauer Oil-Mills, as permanent president, and Mr. F. H. White secretary.

While secretary.

The meeting was organized by the selection of Mr. L. Hanauer, of the Hanauer, in a brief address, clearly stated his views on the question of organization as a necessity for the oil interests of Memphis, detailing the difficulties the mills had to encounter in the effort.

While the majority present appeared to coincide with the president's views, it was also apparent that there was a strong minority in opposition, which an effort was made to harmonize by Mr. E. L. Proudfit, who suggested the temporary consolidation of all the mills, say for a term of two years, in order that it might be practically demonstrated whether or not mutual benefits would accrue to both millman and planter, and whether the objectionable middleman could be done away with. He believed in the adoption of some measure by which a reasonable sprofit could be realized from the manufacture of cit, was called upon, and responded by expressing his opinion favora.

Mr. John L. Cochran, who is said to be the doest citizen engaged in the manufacture of oil, was called upon, and responded by expressing his opinion favora. the oldest citizen engaged in the manufacture of oil, was called upon, and re-onstration. So we are here to-day to honor the birth of one of the most useful sponded by expressing his opinion favora-ble to some such organization as was proposed. He has been engaged in the articles for family use, and the first pro-duction of an enterprise which is destined and his experience justified him in the conclusion that the business was at present conducted at too much expense and too much competition. It should be so The talented auctioneer ther opened the sale.

The first bidder was Mr. S. H. Duns too much competition. It should be so arranged that the farmer and the millman omb, who started the bids at $50. Dr. D. T. Porter advanced the bid to $75 should be able to realize all the profit that could be made from the manufacture of seed, and the middleman, who absorbed all the profits, should be dispensed with.

Mr. Cochran went into details of the manner in which cotton seed was handled under the present system illustrating where-Mr. Dunscomb raised to $80. Dr. Porter bid$100. Mr. Napoleon Hill raised to $125.

whom the stove was "knocked down."

Dr. Porter immediately re-donated the stove to be again sold for the orphans, and it was started at $25 by Mr. La Croix, of Rootes & Dusch's store and tinware establishment. Several other bids were made until at $40, the last bid by Mr. W. F. Taylor, it was sold, and by Mr. Taylor again donated to be sold for the orphans, the time for which not being announced.

The stove is a really fine piece of work, the surface smooth, each piece well fitted and splendidly proportioned, and, taking into consideration that it is the first molding by a new establishment, it is an Dr. D. T. Porter, responding to calls to nade the manufacture of cotton-seed oil a study during the past year or two, and became convinced that the two items of salary and loss of sacks was absorbing all the profits. The amount of $50,000 annu-ally was lost in the item of lost sacks alone. Judge J. W. Clapp wanted to know how many of the Memphis oil-mills were rep-resented at this meeting. Secretary White called the mills by the profits. The amount of $50,000 annually ally was lost in the item of lost sacks alone. The present system of competition gave the middlemen the advantage of all the profits that could be realized, and he favored any arrangement by which it could be broken up. If it were not done disastrous results were sure to follow.

Indeed, I. W. Clean warded to know how. best adapted and most perfectly constructed and appointed establishment they ever worked in. The Bluff City Stove Factory has already in its employ about fifty artisans, all skilled, and selected from the leading factories of the country. The first week's pay-roll amounted to about $900. moters of it may flatter themselves, starts out under most favorable circumstances, and of course has the good will and encouragement of everyone interested in the welfare of the city.

Since the above was written, Dr. Porter requests the explanation that he represented a syndicate formed for the purpose of making the stove yield as large an amount as possible for the orphans, not wishing to take all the credit for generosity to himself.

Mr. J. C. Johnson, of the Hope Oil-Mills, gave his experience as an independ-ent mill and the causes which prompted the Hope Oil-Mills to enter the Cotton-Seed Oil Association. He alluded to losses on account of sacks misplaced. He thought a better scheme would be to enter into some arrangement by which the seed brought to the Memphis market could be prorated equitably to all the mills. The profit to the millman, of course, lay in profit to the millman, of course, lay in the price paid for the seed, and he would like to see it arranged so that the planter could get the benefit of all the millman can afford to pay.

Mr. Alston Boyd, of the Planters' Mill, thought that the fermation of an associa-tion would not afford the desired relief, as MENKEN'S FIVE GREAT BARGAINS it was certain that outside parties would erect mills in addition to those already in operation, thereby increasing the compe-tition. He knew that capitalists from a distance had already been here prospect-ing with the view of establishing mills. They had consulted him about it, and he had told them that instead of erecting other mills they could buy them already built cheaper than they could build them. He proposed as a remedy of the evils com-plained of, that instead of entering into the proposed organization, he would be willing to enter into an arrangement by which a uniform price could be maintain-ed, and that to insure a faithful observance of the rates agreed upon he was willing to enter into a bond. He could not see how the Planters Mill could go into any kind of a pool, but was ready to enter into an arrangement for a uniform system of Mr. S. J. Camp recognized the fact that Mr. S. J. Casip recognized the lact that any organization for protection looked like a monopoly, and monopoly was an odious word to the world. Yet he also recognized in this proposed organization, not a monopoly but a mutual protection for both the planter and millman.

Mr. W. M. Brown expressed decided are within to any kind of organization be.

Mr. W. M. Brown expressed decided opposition to any kind of organization because it looked like making it a monopoly, and he was opposed to anything looking like monopoly. He was also opposed because the Planters' Mill was better than anybody else's mill, and if there were any other mills in the city that could not compete with the Planters' successfully he would advise them to sell out and quit business. He was also opposed to dividing out the seed among the mills. It would be as well for one commission merchant be as well for one commission merchant to ask another to divide his trade with him. He was willing to fix the price of seed for the mutual benefit of the planter and miliman, and was willing to enter into bond for the faithful observance of such a compact.

When Mr. Brown took his seat President Hanauer arose rather excitedly, and remarked that he was not willing to enter remarked that he was not willing to enter into any scheme for conventional rates—there are too many ways of "whipping the devil round the stump." He also remarked that the Hanauer Mill was as good as anybody else's mill (replying to Mr. Brown's statement about the Planters' Mill), and he felt that he was out of place as the pressibility officer of that meeting. and would vacate, and suiting his action to the remark proceeded to leave the pres-ident's chair. Several other members of the Planters'
Mill Company urged the uniform price son asked if they would not agree to the scheme of equitable pro rata of the seed, to which the reply was promptly and emphatically "no!" Mr. Johnson equally as itrmly opposed the uniform price system.

Mr. Godwin, who had hitherto said but in the proceedings of the meeting, took other mills. While they are run on the present system or ten separate organizations, with all attendant expenses, the price of seed would have to be fixed quite low if fair profits are to be realized, and then it is a mere expedient, while the combination is permanent, it solidifies, reduces the expenses of the business to the lowest point available. The planter, to get the best price for his seed, induces large shipments to the city, which is of incalculable benefit to every branch of business, and distributes a large amount of money to the country.

Mr. Godwin concluded his remarks by moving the adoption of the resolution embraced in the proceedings of the preliminary meeting, omitting the words, "similar to the plans adopted by the compress companies."

A meeting of the leading cotton-seed cil-nill men was held at Mozart Hall yesterday morning in obedience to the following circular, which had been previously issued, and which explains the objects for which yesterday's meeting was called:

Mempus, Texx., April 22, 1884.

At an adjourned meeting of representatives of each of the cotton-seed oil-mills of this city to discuss the present condition and future prospects of the mills, it was developed that the past season's operations had left some of them reporting satisfactory and that unless some more conomical plan was adopted the following season would show more disastrous results to the crushing interest of Memphis. To aid us to this end it was deemed proper and advisable to get together the actual owners of these mills and hear from them. Therefore, this resolution was unanimously adopted:
